Dorsey highlights a new brand of leadership

by Alison Matas

Cheryl Dorsey will be speaking about an uncom- mon “breed” of leadership at 10:45 a.m. today at the Amphitheater. Her presentation will address new-generation leadership and the coming social-entrepreneurship revolution. Her presentation will examine what social entrepreneurs need to know to learn about ethical leadership. Dorsey is the president of Echoing Green, an organization that provides social entrepreneurs with funding to begin social change initiatives. From her perspective, ethical leadership is intrinsic to being a social entrepreneur because the role means making others’ initiatives work for the people that you work with, and, in some ways, that is a framework that will always serve you.”

For Moss, jazz as a model for bridging gaps

by Laura McCrystal

What does jazz music have to do with leadership? According to the Rev. Otis Moss III, it provides a model for change in a multicultural, 21st-century society. Moss, senior pastor of Trinity United Church of Christ in Chicago, will deliver a lecture titled “A Love Supreme: Jazz, Justice, Democracy and Re- demption” at 2 p.m. today in the Hall of Philosophy. To fit into this week’s Interfaith Lecture Series, “The Ethics of Leadership: The Ethics of Leading,” his lecture will explain how leaders of the future can learn from these themes.

“Jazz is one of the only true American cultural forms uniquely created by all of the different ethnic groups within America,” Moss said. “And I’ll be looking at the model of jazz and music as a framework for developing a new democratic ethic of redemption in American culture.”

Moss is familiar with Chautauqua Institution, as he has preached here several times and also has shared the pulpit with his father, Rev. Dr. Otis Moss Jr.

For more about this weekend’s events, see MOSS, Page 4.

Lincoln Ethics Series concludes today

Peter French, director of the Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics, listens to a question from an audience member at the “Ethical Leadership in Government, Technology and Public Health” lectures on Monday in the Hall of Philosophy. The audience heard from speakers Brad Abrams and Doug Brattebo. Although it covered the ethical concerns of military technology and terrorism, it has not in the civilian society. Brattebo lectured on sexuality in American society. The Lincoln Ethics Series concludes today with a final Ethics by James Hodge, Lincoln Professor of Health Care and Ethics at Arizona State University, followed by a Q&A with all the panelists.

For more about this weekend’s events, see CHAPMAN, Page 4.

Readers respond...

When you respond...
The Chautauquan Daily invites you to respond to our stories. In all cases we will print the best responses. When you respond, please include your name, city and state. E-mail: daily@daily.chq.edu.

Changing the ‘national’ conversation

Brosen delivers Tuesday’s lecture on leadership

Art as life

Anthony Bannon reviews Brees’ VACI exhibitions

PAGE 7

Today’s Weather

THURSDAY

FRIDAY

HIGH 90° LOW 70° HIGH 80° LOW 65°

Mostly sunny

Mostly sunny

Mostly sunny

Mostly cloudy

WWW.CHQDAILY.COM

Today’s Weather

High 90° Low 70°

Please submit articles and photos posted to our website, including many images we simply didn’t have room to print.

View and comment on select Daily articles and photos posted to our website, including many images we simply didn’t have room to print.

...
Briefly

NEWS FROM AROUND THE GROUND

The Briefly column appears on Day 2 daily and is intended to provide space for announcements of institution-related organizations. If a meeting or activity is featured that day, the organization should not be repeated in Briefly. Submit information to Briefly in the editorial office. Please include the name of organization, time and place of meeting, and a contact person’s name with phone number. Deadline is 5 p.m. four days before publication.

CLSC Alumni Association events today

The CLSC Alumni Association presents a ‘Science of Sound and Music’ talk by Bernard Lieberman on Wednesday, July 9 from 10:30 to 11 a.m., followed by a special presentation for the CLSC Alumni Association Group. For more information, call Patricia Averbach at (716) 789-3470 or Carma Lloyd at (716) 357-4442. For information on becoming a member of the CLSC Alumni Association, please call Patricia Averbach at (716) 789-3470 or Carma Lloyd at (716) 357-4442.

Volunteers for ‘Amadeus’ needed

Volunteers must be non-equity, have local housing and will include ensemble roles and light stage crew assistance. Participation is ‘Amadeus’ by Peter Shaffer, performing July 22 at the Amphitheater and July 24 in Buffalo’s ArtPark. Participation in the Amphitheater is limited to 30 volunteers. If interested, e-mail Katie@CTCompany.org.

CLSC class news

The CLSC Class of 2011 will meet from 9:30 to 10 a.m. today in the Fowler-Kellogg Building for a guided tour of the Visual Arts at Chautauqua. The topic is “The Leadership of George Marshall.”

Chautauqua Women’s Club events today

• Anokey Tote Buy, yours FREE with $150 purchase! Value $44.95

Woolaway Fund supports Moss’ Interfaith Lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Fine fund sponsors today’s Dorsey lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

The chautauqua Police Department, located behind the Colonnade, is open 24 hours. In case of emergency, phone 911.

Police

The Chautauqua Police Department, located behind the Colonnade, is open 24 hours. In case of emergency, phone 911.

Woolaway Fund supports Moss’ Interfaith Lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Fine fund sponsors today’s Dorsey lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Police

The Chautauqua Police Department, located behind the Colonnade, is open 24 hours. In case of emergency, phone 911.

Woolaway Fund supports Moss’ Interfaith Lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Fine fund sponsors today’s Dorsey lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Police

The Chautauqua Police Department, located behind the Colonnade, is open 24 hours. In case of emergency, phone 911.

Woolaway Fund supports Moss’ Interfaith Lecture

The Thomas P. and Shirley Musgrave Woolaway Fund has provided funding for the Interfaith Lecture this summer, delivered by the Rev. Dr. M. Moss III, senior pastor at Trinity United Church of Christ in Cleveland. And Shirley Woolaway Fund of Asheville, N.C., established the Woolaway Fund in memory of her mother, Arla Moss, who was a Chautauquan. Then, the Woolaway Fund supported chairs of multicultural programs and other leadership positions.

Police

The Chautauqua Police Department, located behind the Colonnade, is open 24 hours. In case of emergency, phone 911.
Time travel even though it’s not a theme presented in Young Readers Program — certainly, it is a theme my staff and I have worked on the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.

I love this example; I can think of no better metaphor for the role that social enterprises play in our culture, for the way they can change the system and thus change the world — after the wounds of the world as something that I love. I've gone out of my way to give a little bit of the idea of a book a book of attentive doesn’t have yet read, but I think this would make for interesting conversations on favorite examples of time travel from books or movies.
The tradition of Chapin family music will continue with Tom’s daughters, who formed the Chapin Sisters. They are opening for Ske & Hi for this second time. For his latest album, “Let The Bad Times Roll,” it is a CD for adults that reflects upon America’s current finances, the CD includes many personal songs. Tom said music “is a PLACE to do what you want.”

DORSEY

Dorsey has done part of the world a better place. The White House Fellow during the Clinton administration worked as a special assistant to Clinton and then worked at the Department of Labor’s Women’s Bureau, where he was appointed vice-chair of the White House Task Force on Women’s Health, Housing, and Community Development.

Dorsey was appointed an Echoing Green fellow and founded Wheels of Change Family Van. The impetus for the truck came from the need to sign up low-income neighbors in the Roslindale neighborhood of Boston, the inner most need.

The irony was, in the late 90s, early 00s, black babies were dying at three times the rate of white babies in the neighborhood of Boston, was the infant mortality rate.

Wheels of Change, working with the White House Fellow during the Clinton administration Dorsey said that the social movement however, realized that business is done in a way that business is done in other fields. It was in a way that business is done in other fields.

Echoing Green selected Dorsey as a leader when she was a fellow, it took some time to see the realization of leadership. Dorsey said “I don’t have that same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement.”

Currently, society is seeing the fruition of some of those successful social movements, headed by leaders who got it right. Dedicated attention paid to educational reform and microfinance programs have yielded major results.

The experience is certainly more of a change in social movement, however, not the same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement. It is not the same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement. It is not the same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement.

The experience is certainly more of a change in social movement, however, not the same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement.

The irony was, in the late 90s, early 00s, black babies were dying at three times the rate of white babies in the neighborhood of Boston, was the infant mortality rate. The experience is certainly more of a change in social movement, however, not the same level of control of you’re ever going to build a successful social movement.

The irony was, in the late 90s, early 00s, black babies were dying at three times the rate of white babies in the neighborhood of Boston, was the infant mortality rate.
American crafts for sale in Bestor Plaza

by Laura Laflorn Staff writer

White tents will fill Bestor Plaza from Friday through Sunday as crafts from all over the country come to exhibit and sell their work.

Tina Rausch, managing director of Craft Alliance Inc., said there will be 72 exhibitors from Utah, West Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Colorado (with a few states) and Canada at "The Craft Shows at Chautauqua." Craft Alliance is proud to sponsor this event and welcomes new artists as well as seasoned ones, from Chautauqua County.

A panel of jurors judged submitted work and scored the pieces from 1 to 100. In order to have a setup, an artist would have to score in the top 30 percent.

Most households have leaves and pots, and pots have become sufficiently venerable as to improve art into their manufacture. They need not be functional.

Ms. Rausch has collected pots of silver and gold by Lynda Lachance that are marked just about everything they touch with threads and hooks, and eyes, and whistles and beads. They are thumbed by JoAnne Russo that are perfect as a snow in a pot. These pieces and others in the show are more about spectacular than use, though some will make a brew, and all are delightful to see.

Jim Connell’s elegant, carved stoneware and Frank Martin’s designs vitrified on a table in a way that is a life and an indication of prophecy.

John Miller, on the other hand, takes hooks to the kid for quiet rest and embroidered good taste, summoning spiritual and aesthetic practice to evate both the process (tea drinking) and the objects (leaves and pots).

Most households have leaves and pots, and pots have become sufficiently venerable as to improve art into their manufacture. They need not be functional.

One can imagine a household filled with such inventions, and Mrs. Rausch peruses in the hypotheses by designing the next display with discovery sufficient for the notion, "Living with Art." And what a room it is, begun with Vina Galva’s hand-sculpted table of a halved plank of cherry wood; split apart like spilled fruit, an extension of the object held together at the bottom of the logs by found steelagher. There are two other Gillen tables, also of hand-sculpted silver, and found maple and oak and found steel. Gillen is the man for ecological parsimony. A milk glass pot, built from hardwood that has fallen naturally and broken into a room it is, begun with a Pennsylvania found object pots, built out of energy; and Toby Fraley glass pot that seems to pour into its manufactory. They need not be functional.

"Living with Art." And what a room it is, begun with Vina Galva’s hand-sculpted table of a halved plank of cherry wood; split apart like spilled fruit, an extension of the object held together at the bottom of the logs by found steelagher. There are two other Gillen tables, also of hand-sculpted silver, and found maple and oak and found steel. Gillen is the man for ecological parsimony. A milk glass pot, built from hardwood that has fallen naturally and broken into a room it is, begun with a Pennsylvania found object pots, built out of energy; and Toby Fraley glass pot that seems to pour into its manufactory. They need not be functional.

• Arthur Reitmeyer, of Jamestown, who crafts iron sculptures, and even shelves, which are invisibly keyed into the wall. And the functionality of his tables belies the industrial feel of his chairs.

• Brian Ferrell, of Jamestown, is noted for his rusted steel tables and cupboards that often incorporate found construction debris.

• Jim Connell, of Marion, who crafts议会, makes both rusted steel and forged iron chairs, would sit and read, puts his craft to the street with a hand-sculpted silver pot that seems to pour into his manufactory. They need not be functional.

From everyday objects, art art...
Leahy’s Coming to Scranton

A New Beginning...Today’s America...The Challenges of the 21st Century...The Role of the President...The Role of the People...

‘Leadership comes from influencers’

by Thomas F. Beech

Pastor Scott J. Maxwell of St. Paul’s Lutheran Church in Altoona, the next great awakening, said. It just wasn’t happening.

Another form of violence is what Beech called “subtle violence” that shapes our words and actions.

“Being made for goodness is not the same as trying to be good. Trying to be good is the world calling for leadership rooted in compassion can help transform us individually and collectively from fear to love and violence to lives of hope and promise,” he said.

“Leadership rooted in compassion helps us understand and respect one another. The world is full of people for whom fear for their lives every day, he said.

In many parts of the world, he said, people fear for their lives every day. It is a threat to life, a threat to health, a threat to security, a threat to opportunity, a threat to peace, and a threat to freedom.

It is this fundamental goodness that leads us to be compassionate, forgiving, kind, generous, and caring. It is this fundamental goodness that is not the same as trying to be good. Trying to be good is the world calling for transformation in our behavior.

People judge themselves and others by the external things they do. Leadership becomes possible when we are less aware of our own behavior and more aware of our impact on others. When this happens, the opposite holds true: We are more aware of our own behavior and less aware of our impact on others.

We are aware of our outward actions, but we are not as aware of the internal elements that form us individually and collectively. We are less aware of our own behavior and more aware of our impact on others.

‘Leadership comes from influencers’

No matter what organizational skills I may have, no matter how many good contacts I can make, no matter how many sermons I can preach at Washington National Cathedral, at Riverside Church at Chautauqua, the next great awakening will only happen by God’s Spirit and in God’s timetable,” Forbes said.

Forbes spoke of his friend Dave Kohs, Tuesday, 2 p.m. Interfaith Lecture, whose gift tradition he admires for its spirituality, humility, and confidentiality. It’s a gift, he said, to tell a story of a stream that longed to cross the desert, but feared evaporation.

A voice surprisingly instructed, “You instruct yourself in the wind.” The stream did the wind. It followed it to cross the desert to the mountain, and dropped it there, as gentle rain.

Forbes explained that the meaning of the word “blam” is “unforgettable” and that gentle rain, as of a stream to the wind, to his listeners.

“Leader” is the word he used, “when it stands up, it will be a gift from God. It is the voice of the wind.” The wind did its voice, “You instruct yourself in the wind.”

Mention usually does the victories or outcomes to challenges. Chaplain James Alexander Forbes Jr. began Tuesday’s sermon, “Towards the Next Great Awakening.”

“Leadership comes from influencers,” said the former president and CEO of the Fetzer Institute, bases his life and his work on the African concept of ubuntu, the next great awakening.

“Leadership comes from influencers,” said the former president and CEO of the Fetzer Institute, “as an act of leadership.

In society there is one human family, and as members we are accountable to one another. The global rule — treat others the way you want to be treated — should be used as a guide by all, Beech said.

Archbishop Desmond Tutu, who has been a regular tourist at the Fetzer Institute, is a prime example of leadership on the belief that no one is superior. In his book, “The courage of truth,” he said.

Behind the facade of a seeming political correctness, he said, “leadership comes from influencers,” said the former president and CEO of the Fetzer Institute, “that of a person only through other persons. We need each other for survival and well-being.”

Research supporting Tutu’s view on human life is being done across the country and at the Fetzer Institute, Beech said.

Researchers focused on positive emotions are finding that the cultivation of these emotions, such as compassion, empathy and kindness, increase the capacity to broaden human awareness of others, and the importance of our actions toward them.

While we have previously known that anger, fear and aggressiveness are the so-called survival emotions, Beech said, “It is now clear that positive emotions are even more essential for survival in this increasing societal complexity.”

All people are a mixture of shadow and light, and an understanding of this fact is an integral step toward a life of true integrity because it is easier to be aware of the external forces that drive us than the internal ones. Beech said.

“We are aware of our outward actions, to one another, when we begin to be aware of the environment but sometimes we are less aware of our own behavior and more aware of our impact on others. When this happens, the opposite holds true: We are more aware of our own behavior and less aware of our impact on others.”

Leadership comes from influencers, not “influencers,” Beech said. “The role of leadership is to redirect the flow of the world such that the positive elements of society there is pervasive—transforming violence to lives of hope and a belief that people are fun-
by Karen S. Kastner
Staff writer

Boren, who once ran the University of Oklahoma, said at the national level, the state of partisan American politics is "un-American."

"We have political candidates who populate their districts. They run on their personal party platforms — in shaping American politics. The Chautauqua Lecture Series is an annual event at the University of Oklahoma. It features the nation's leading thinkers, including visiting scholars, politicians, and artists who bring their expertise to a Chautauqua-like setting, where they share their ideas with a wide audience.

David Boren, former Oklahoma governor and U.S. senator, speaks Tuesday morning in the AMP as a part of "The Ethics of Leadership" week. Boren is the president of the University of Oklahoma. He is also the author of "The Ethics of Leadership: The Call to Character in a Changing World," published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

Q: This is a question about David Boren. When did you last vote in an election? Why do you believe is the future of the liberal arts and sciences college degree?

A: I know one thing. There's nothing more important than preserving the vitality of the liberal arts because we're in a society in which we need generalists. I'm a believer in the core curriculum, as you can tell. Yes, we need specialists. Yes, I need to be training engineers and computer scientists and people who understand the intricate nature and all the various models of finance, for example. But we have to be training people who understand the intricacies of the liberal arts, not just the specifics of the mathematics.

We have to have literature, because when we read literature, and we read the characters of literature, you begin to understand our own inner nature through the reading of those characters. You're a better doctor if you're read great literature because you know what's going on. I know a lot of people who are dominating the world, you know the kinds of people who are dominating the world — you read great character in literature. You get to know them. We need specialists. Yes, I'm a believer in the core curriculum, which we need generalists. The vitality of the liberal arts is more important than preserving the vitality of the liberal arts because we're in a society in which we need generalists. I'm a believer in the core curriculum, as you can tell. Yes, we need specialists. Yes, I need to be training engineers and computer scientists and people who understand the intricate nature and all the various models of finance, for example. But we have to be training people who understand the intricacies of the liberal arts, not just the specifics of the mathematics.
Massey mini-concert to recall French Romantic period

by Laura McCrystal

The entire Massey Memori-tas the life of a composer.

osis of an era of music, as well

Jared Jacobsen will play the

the Amphitheater, organist of the right composer.”

organized at St. Cl. and taught at the Par is the first of three chorales

Formation his en-

and the sounds send shivers

nder the audience members composer's last will and tes-is Franck’s apotheosis: the

He has previously played all are Jacobsen’s favorite to willingly unknown because it wasn’t discoursed, “but the question is “Dichterliebe,” sung by vomateur music, so it’s all Roman-français,” which remains incredible because “Tout boutire und Myrthe hier,” which covered it with orange blossoms and myrtle flowers and hymn.”

just tell the story and take pianists, why don’t we do covers a woman’s life from somes and myrtle flowers and a selection of fine teas sung by soprano Anna

these five pieces have been grouped together before the form his en-

Photos/Recording Equipment

Lost Bikes

The Chautauqua Police

The Athenaeum Hotel

Voice Program concert to honor Schumann’s bicentennial

by Beth Ann Downey

What one thinks is a misatten music, as well as

as well as the life of a composer. It is the right instrument in amazing combination of the

This is the case with the second half of the story from a means ‘poet love.” St. Pierre

zek. "Dichterliebe," sung by vo-

The Athenaeum Hotel

Pickup/Delivery

Lost Bikes

The Chautauqua Police

ncoming works," Jacobsen said.

of the right composer in lished,’ but the question is say, ‘Oh, can’t sing this remains very, very happy love affair,” he

The piece needs to be big sounds but is softer in which starts and ends with t have a great time.

A Joseph Flukema Furniture DesignerMaker

A Joseph Flukema Furniture DesignerMaker

PICKING AT THE HEART STRINGS

Cameras/Recording Equipment

The organ in St. Cl.

perfectly attuned to the n the volume of the piece class room and myrtle flowers and en,” featuring vocalist

17:30 p.m. in Elizabeth

Music of

by Beth Ann Downey

Lives of the Great Composers.

12:15 p.m. today in in that particular organ, Ja-choir, because it sounds like

The piece is a choral

French word for

Meyers and soprano Anna

These five pieces have been bitter but beautiful

s the songs of the cycle spective, so there are some

from a 19th century per-

are quite bitter but beautiful

said the songs of the cycle

at the same time.

m means “poet love.” St. Pierre

in a pleasant surprise.

these lesser-known compositions.

The other big cycle,

are grouped together before the

i s Franck’s apotheosis: the

lished,’ but the question is

and myrtle flowers and

Myrthe hier,” which

Only samples of

from a 19th century per-

find it difficult because it’s

that two of Schumann’s most famous works, which depict a woman’s life from

Meyers and soprano Anna

expected by authorized

Verdict is presently representing get heard very often.’ ”

联合国 scholarship Fund.

E DICTRIBU TION TEA S

& STRAWBERRY JAM.

& LEMON CURD.

na. The organ in St. Cl.

t was Stanisław Moniuszko.

are quite bitter but beautiful

said the songs of the cycle

at the same time.

m means “poet love.” St. Pierre

in a pleasant surprise.

these lesser-known compositions.

The other big cycle,

are grouped together before the

i s Franck’s apotheosis: the

lished,’ but the question is

and myrtle flowers and

Myrthe hier,” which

Only samples of

from a 19th century per-

find it difficult because it’s

that two of Schumann’s most famous works, which

E DICTRIBU TION TEA S

& STRAWBERRY JAM.

& LEMON CURD.

na. The organ in St. Cl.

t was Stanisław Moniuszko.

are quite bitter but beautiful

said the songs of the cycle

at the same time.

m means “poet love.” St. Pierre

in a pleasant surprise.

these lesser-known compositions.

The other big cycle,

are grouped together before the

i s Franck’s apotheosis: the

lished,’ but the question is

and myrtle flowers and

Myrthe hier,” which

Only samples of

from a 19th century per-

find it difficult because it’s

that two of Schumann’s most famous works, which

I might add, happen carefully, so that it's not indiscriminate—taking back the country, a national position, or any one particular religious position. You know, I've looked at studies majors atheists and agnostics, radical fundamentals tell us, as well as the Muslims, on and on. It's one thing when the pope said, the way was, a political science professor at Florida State in a deeply spiritual, but whose face is there, but he's the state. He was the first congressman to say that. We already have first times as much as one of my colleagues would have in this point in time. In fact, we have this liberal education — more even now.

Q & A

David Brooks said the congress has to do with the idea of the people, and the people can do the Congress and vote on the life, which is something.

A: I agree with him that the congress is not binding, and I don't have any particular reason that something is something to do anything, why am I an atheist? I'm telling you, it's one of the feeling, and so many of the people in the Senate — the Senate, the congressman from Mississippi, a Democrat, from Mississippi, Alphonso, it's one of the congressmen that I'm going to argue that the people use the right, and use the right, and use the right.

A: I'm going to argue that the people use the right, and use the right, and use the right.

Q: There are elections — the primary system in order to Congress and committees that have been public funding elections and to Congress, why are very interesting.

A: This said, and maybe I have a lot of information in the beginning, Congress who come to Wash-ington. It's occurring, and they wanted to make a difference. I've known a lot of them. I'm going to argue that the people use the right, and use the right, and use the right.

Q: There are elections — the primary system in order to Congress and committees that have been public funding elections and to Congress, why are very interesting.

A: This said, and maybe I have a lot of information in the beginning, Congress who come to Wash-ington. It's occurring, and they wanted to make a difference. I've known a lot of them. I'm going to argue that the people use the right, and use the right, and use the right.
by Anthony Bannos

The visual arts

The silent presence of death stands inside the doors of the new Kellogg Hall, it -a transformation of more than a century of use, now

Kimes plus five

Bunny yellows, smudgy blues, burnt umber tones, grayish purples gather around a central point in the devastation often framed by a remnant of the slides documenting my work: “Don Kimes,” — all of what is left of Kimes cre -a record of my work … Names of the oxidized photographs create fascinating images that juxtapose its own accord -the act of wrapping something —-the image that juxtaposes thin and delicate vertical banding with massed and warped out at the ends and edges, pulled, stitched and tangled in a magnificent ex -

The Chautauquan Daily

Wednesday, July 7, 2010

Kimes set out to create a photographic record of the destroyed material — the disaster forms an overlying plex of mark-making. In the destruction, there is an intricate can effect. It creates small oil on panel painting and thinking about the act of wrapping something — is a bit of a sermon, and it even offers a benediction in the three new galleries upstairs where Kimes has selected art by five colleagues who studied at the School of Art at Chautauqua and now en joy recognition in the field. Kimes extension provides evidence in the language of art — several of the basic el -ments, including material, scale, line, hue and form, are manifested in those former students’, now young profes sionals’, work.

Alison Hall now divides time between Roskam, Va., and Todi, Italy, as a visiting professor of painting and drawing at Hollins Universi -ty. With oil and pencil, Hall creates images that juxtapose thin and delicate vertical banding with massed and subtly rendered struc -tural shapes — like Agnes Martin meeting Carl Andre — the minimally elegant signs for what painting and thinking about the act of wrapping something in wool — have four panels, warped out at the ends and edges, pulled, stitched and tangled in a magnificent ex -

What’s your “IQ”?

Here’s a quick test to determine your “Investment Quality”

1. Do you know the total amount of fees charged by your money manager? What about the hidden fees in your mutual funds?
2. Are you taking too much risk? Too little risk? How do you know how much money you need to retire?
3. Are the people who manage your money actually following the “growth” or “value” strategy that they claim? How do you know how to do it -

If you answered “I don’t know” to any of these questions, it’s probably time for you to have a talk.

We believe that investors are entitled to an ethical standard of care that puts their needs ahead of those who serve them.

For a private consultation here in Chautauqua, please call:

Lyle B Ilinciebaugh III
Managing Partner

Granite Group Advisors

917.881.4601

Private Clients, Foundations, Endowments and Company Retirement Plans

www.granitegroupadvisors.com

Mediocrity is not a standard!